

INDIANS CAN'T FLY

DIRECTED BY ENVER SAMUEL

Ahmed Timol was a patriotic South African with the courage and conviction to resist the apartheid system. He died in police custody on 27 October 1971. Police said he jumped from the 10th floor of John Vorster Square. Family and comrades say he was more likely to have been pushed – or tortured to death, and thrown. Nobody responsible for his capture and interrogation has ever been held accountable.

A true story seen through the eyes of Timol's nephew, Imtiaz Ahmed Cajee, author of Timol: Quest for Justice.
